CEO to leave Airservices

Airservices Australia, the national air traffic provider, has announced that Margaret Staib, Chief Executive Officer will not be renewing her term in October and will leave Airservices in August this year.

Ms Staib's decision has been prompted by her decision to focus on her short term personal health.

The Chairman of Airservices Australia, Air Chief Marshal Sir Angus Houston states "Ms Staib has made a significant contribution to Airservices and achieved considerable success during her term."

"Ms Staib will be missed by colleagues and Airservices wishes her every success in the future."

"Airservices is in the process of selecting a new CEO. In the interim, Mr Jason Harfield has been appointed as Airservices Acting CEO".
